Mr. John W Wright

Dear sir -
In regard to your letter of Dec 5 - -47 as to why the name of Evans
on the end of my name

I have went by the name of Claude Raymond Evans ever since I was about four years old. on the account that was my step dads name. So every body knows me by that name all so served in World War #2 by the name of Evans. So in order to git my Rail Road retirement pension
I would have to have Evans on the last part of my name as I have worked for the G.N.R. for

32 years by the name of Claude Raymond Evans.

So I dont see how I can Change it back to Horne unless I went to Law.

Figure 1. A schematic diagram of the experimental setup. The subject is seated in a chair, viewing a video screen. The screen displays a target (a small circle) and a starting point (a larger circle). The subject's hand is positioned at the starting point. The distance between the starting point and the target is labeled as 'Distance'. The subject is instructed to move their hand from the starting point to the target. The video screen is connected to a computer system, which records the hand's position and movement. The computer system is also connected to a data acquisition system, which records the subject's heart rate and blood pressure. The data acquisition system is connected to a computer system, which displays the data on a monitor. The computer system is also connected to a printer, which prints the data on a sheet of paper.

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem. This involves identifying the symptoms of the problem and determining the scope of the problem. Once the problem has been defined, the next step is to identify the causes of the problem. This involves identifying the factors that are contributing to the problem and determining the underlying causes of the problem. Once the causes of the problem have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action. This involves identifying the steps that need to be taken to solve the problem and determining the resources that will be needed to implement the plan. Once a plan of action has been developed, the next step is to implement the plan. This involves carrying out the steps that have been identified in the plan and monitoring the progress of the implementation. Finally, the last step in the process is to evaluate the results of the implementation. This involves determining whether the problem has been solved and whether the resources have been used effectively.

1. Based on the results of the 1971-72 survey, the following conclusions were drawn:

A circular stamp from the National Archives and Records Administration. The outer ring contains the text "NATIONAL ARCHIVES AND RECORDS ADMINISTRATION" at the top and "COLLEGE PARK, MARYLAND" at the bottom. The center of the stamp features a stylized eagle with its wings spread, perched atop a shield. Below the eagle, the year "1967" is printed. The stamp is slightly faded and has a textured appearance.

1. The first part of the document is a letter from the President of the United States to the Congress, dated January 1, 1861. It is a very important document, as it sets out the President's policy on the secession of the Southern States. The President states that he is bound by the Constitution to preserve the Union, and that he will use all the powers of the Government to do so. He also states that he will not recognize the secession of any State, and that he will treat all the States as equal.

RECEIVED
STATE OF TEXAS
JAN 10 1964

A circular postmark from New York, dated 1891. The text "NEW YORK" is at the top, "1891" is at the bottom, and "JAN 10" is in the center. The number "10" is large and prominent.

1. The first of these is the fact that the Commission has not yet received any information from the Government of the United Kingdom regarding the proposed changes to the law of the United Kingdom in relation to the treatment of the British Commonwealth countries.
